Once upon a time, there was a mother parrot who had two babies. She went in search of food. A hunter found the babies in their nest and took them away in his net. One of the baby parrots escaped the hunter's net and went into the house of an old man. The old man took care of the baby parrot and gave him a place to sleep in his home. He taught the baby parrot to speak. The hunter carried the other baby parrot to his home and kept him in a cage. He also taught his parrot to speak.

One day the king of the land came to the forest. He lost his way and came riding close to the hunter's home. As he came closer, he heard the parrot screaming, 'Here's a hunter! Kill him! Kill him!' The king was afraid and rode away.
